HOW IT WORKS

From blank month to booked shifts

1

It learns your store

POS sales history shows your real busy and slow days, store by store.

2

Auto-Schedule drafts the month

Fixed-schedule stylists first, then everyone else against demand, your priority days first.

3

You review and publish

Move, retime, or swap any shift. Nothing reaches your team until you press Publish.

4

Push to Shortcuts

Approved shifts land in the booking system as bookable hours customers can book online.

Availability, time off, and weekly hour caps are hard limits. Auto-Schedule never schedules over them, and flags any open day it can't cover.

BUILDING THE SCHEDULE

Five ways to build a schedule

✨

Auto-Schedule

Drafts the whole month from 13 months of POS demand, honoring availability, hour caps, time off, and your rules.

Best for: a fresh month

Build from last month

Clones last month's published shifts by weekday. Closed dates and time off are skipped.

Best for: a schedule that works

Import from clock-ins

Rebuilds a schedule from when your team actually clocked in over the last month.

Best for: a new store

Copy to next week

One click copies this week into next, skipping closed dates, time off, and filled slots.

Best for: steady weeks

Add shifts by hand

Click any empty cell and tap a shift template, or set the times yourself.

Best for: quick changes

Every option lands as a draft. Stylists see nothing until you publish, and a bad draft month clears in one step.

BUILT FOR COOKIE CUTTERS

It speaks Shortcuts

Push to POS, on your click

Approved shifts go into the Shortcuts appointment book. Publishing never sends anything on its own.

Bookable times

Finish times round down to the 15-minute grid, so customers never see a slot that can't fit a service.

Check it first

Optionally push a draft week, check it in the store's book, then publish to your stylists.

Every delivery confirmed

A push log shows each shift sent to the store and whether Shortcuts confirmed it.

FEATURES

Everything a manager needs to run the floor

See the rush before it hits

Every day is shaded by haircuts against the month's average, alongside the staffing you actually had. Back-to-school jumps off the page.

- Haircuts and staffed FTE per day, by location
- Click any day to see who worked it
- Plan this year's season against last year's

Closed dates & blackouts

Close the salon for holidays, or block time-off requests during your rush weeks.

Rules & coverage

Fixed schedules, hour ranges, weekend days off, and coverage targets per weekday.

Scheduled vs. actual

Compare planned hours with POS hours by stylist, month over month. Export to CSV.

Announcements & notify

Post notes to the team, and email everyone when a published week changes.

Multi-location & mobile

Every salon from one login, on any phone, with owner, manager, and staff roles.

What owners and managers say

> What Is My Schedule makes creating the schedule much quicker & efficient. It creates a heat map to show when we need to staff up without having to remember the exact days from the previous years. It also allows us to copy a week's schedule and paste it to the next week and my favorite feature is the POS syncing to guarantee the schedule matches Shortcuts exactly how it shows for my employees in their app. This has been extremely helpful and easy to use.

> What Is My Schedule is easy to use both for the owner as well as the employee. Features I love are: the ability for employees to ask for time off, my ability to have dates, such as holidays, where the employee can't ask for time off, easy addition of employees, and easy copying of past schedules. What Is My Schedule is a time saver for owners.
